In last minute settlement:

Oil field roughneck to receive $265,000

By WAYNE DUCOMB JR.

In a last minute decision early Wednesday afternoon, attorneys representing an oil field service company decided to forego a Hancock County Circuit Court jury decision and pay $265,000 to a Poyune man injured in a Catahoula Oil and Gas Field accident.

Attorney George Morse of White and Morse of Gulfport, the firm representing injured oil field worker David Story, later Wednesday said the jury had reached a decision and was about to present it to the court when defense attorney James Dukes of Dukes, Dukes and Carruba of Gulfport announced his client, G.W. (Boots) Smith Corp., wished to settle the lawsuit out of court.

Morse said the company agreed to pay Story $265,000.

Story originally sued the company for $1 million in damages resulting from an Aug. 8, 1981 oil field accident in which his leg was crushed by steel beams while a Penrod Drilling Co. rig was being dismantled, Morse confirmed.

Story was employed by Penrod. But in his closing remarks Wednesday morning, Morse told the jury while utilizing a diagram that Boots Smith should pay Story $775,031 for lost back wages, pain and suffering, medical expenses and projected wages for 45.2 years.

While deliberating on the case, the jury requested Morris' chart, but Place Two Circuit Court Judge J. Ruble Griffin declined the request.

The jury reached its unknown verdict at the Hancock County Courthouse in Bay St. Louis after deliberating 50 minutes (from 11:35 a.m. until 12:45 p.m.), Morse noted.

Testimony during the 2.5-day trial which began Monday morning revealed Penrod had contracted Boots Smith to dismantle and move rig No. 112 which had been utilized to drill a Catahoula well for Hunt Energy Corp.

The accident occurred while Penrod and Boots Smith crews were disassembling supporting A-frames which form the drilling tower's structural base.

Employees working at the rig at the time of the accident testified although Boots Smith was charged with dismantling and moving the rig, Penrod workers (roughnecks) would perform any tasks on the rig above ground level.

Story was injured when a 'spreader beam' being disconnected from the A-frames was either lifted or sprung unexpectedly from position, turned while suspended by crane cables and crushed the Poyune man's leg between 12-inch steel girders, workers said.

Morse noted in his closing remarks to the jury that Penrod workers said the spreader beam unexpectedly 'jumped up' as they were climbing down from the rig after removing fastening pins and connecting lift cables.

But Boots Smith employees basically said Penrod crews would not climb down after being repeatedly warned of possible danger and signalled Boots Smith crane operator Paul Russell to lift the beam, Morse said.

Russell, a longtime operator of Raleigh, said the Penrod workers signalled him to lift the beam and as a customary practice was obligated to lift the spreader as directed.

Regarding the unexpected action of the beam, Russell stated, "You may make 500 lifts and a spreader beam won't move, but there's always that possibility it has stress on it and it jumps."

In the first day of the trial, Story showed the jury his extensively scarred

He said the accident cut the inside of his leg from just below the knee up to his crotch, exposing the leg bone.

Story said he was initially taken to Crosby Memorial Hospital in Poyune then transferred to Ochsner Foundation Hospital in New Orleans where doctors found the outside of his leg sliced open.

He recounted several surgical operations and reported more are needed.

Story said doctors expect he will only have 45 percent use of the leg for the rest of his life.

He added he sought vocational rehabilitation training, but found no state funds were available and he has no money to pay for private training.

Also representing Story was Lee Perry of White and Morse.

Boots Smith was also represented by Walter Phillips of Gex, Gex and Phillips of Bay St. Louis.

Superintendent's contract renewed after closed meet

By WAYNE DUCOMB JR.

The Bay St. Louis Municipal Separate School District Board of Trustees at its regular monthly meeting Monday night met for almost one hour in executive session and then voted to renew its superintendent of education's contract for one year.

The trustees met from 8:35 p.m. until 9:25 p.m. with Lucien Gex, board attorney, but in the final minutes of the closed session called J.D. McCullough, superintendent of education, into the meeting.

All other district employees and spectators were excluded from the executive session.

Details of the contract were not revealed, but McCullough's present annual salary based on his six percent pay hike for the 1982-83 fiscal year is $35,046.

In other business at the 7:30 p.m. meeting at the superintendent's Bay Senior High School office, the board authorized a resolution requesting city funds to renovate the Bay Junior High School gymnasium and two restrooms at the school as recommended by McCullough.

He said the estimated cost of the renovations is $29,700.

Garland Cuevas, district business manager, explained an inventory system which will be implemented at all schools to account for all equipment and nonconsumable supplies.

He said all teachers will inventory those items in their rooms and those lists will be checked at least annually.

TRAIN STOPS IN BAY—The Bay St. Louis Railroad Depot is in the background of a passenger train as D.E. Wilcox, Hancock County's representative on the Louisiana, Mississippi, and Alabama Rapid Rail Transit Commission, walks to coach. He joined other commission members, Amtrak, Seaboard System Railroad (formerly L and N), Mississippi Highway Transportation representatives who were checking the tracks and facilities between New Orleans and Mobile. Wilcox said some $350,000 has been appropriated by Congress for a planning study on the feasibility of passenger service being restored between Mobile and New Orleans, especially for the 1984 New Orleans World's Fair. The last passenger train to run regular schedules through Hancock County was the Gulfwind over 10 years ago. (Staff photo by Ellis Cuevas).

Diamondhead groups meets with Longo

By ELLIS CUEVAS

A group of Diamondhead residents met Tuesday night informally with Waveland Mayor John Longo to study the 'pros' and 'cons' of incorporation.

The reason for the gathering was for the group to get some ideas from Longo, as the Purcell Corporation, the developer of Diamondhead is scheduled to pull-out in mid-1985.

Talbot Steel, chairman of those talking with Longo, said four groups of six persons have been selected from the residents of Diamondhead to seek answers on whether to incorporate or not.

Steel added, "All four groups plan on getting together and discuss our findings before recommendations will be made to Diamondhead residents."

Longo explained the advantages of being incorporated such as the receiving of grants, collection of sales taxes, and passing of laws which an unincorporated area is unable to enforce.

"The City of Waveland has received some $3 million in HUD grants in recent years, and of course none of these would have been possible without being incorporated. I realize because of the income of residents of Diamondhead you would probably not qualify for those type of grants, but you would qualify for low interest rates on loans," Longo stated.

Longo advised the group by saying, "There are many forms of government along the Coast. They all work, the most important thing is the persons in office. I would suggest your group visit a few regular meetings, say of Bay St. Louis, Gulfport, Biloxi, Waveland and Long Beach to really get a feeling of how they work."

One of the advantages the mayor stated was what would happen if they were unincorporated and their water system went out, how would they get money to repair or replace the system.

"When you are incorporated as a city you can get things done. I remember several years ago when a young lady came to me and asked if I could help the fishermen when the Bonnet Carré Spillway was opened and destroyed all fishing. I prepared a bill and submitted it to Washington and 30 days later it was passed," Longo allowed stating, "if you are unincorporated, something like that would be impossible."

Longo closed by saying "In any system of government, you only get what you put in."

Other committee members in addition to Steel meeting with Longo were Ginny Milam, Benny McIntosh, Bill Hunt and Dennis J. Innes.

Grand Jury eyeing nepotism practices

By WAYNE DUCOMB JR.

The Hancock County Grand Jury is now apparently investigating possible nepotism practices by local government officials.

Place Two Circuit Court Judge J. Ruble Griffin of Bay St. Louis in instructing the Grand Jury just after selection of its 20 members outlined four major areas to be investigated, including possible nepotism practices.

Griffin told the jurors the state nepotism laws regarding government hiring practices concern all relatives closer than third cousins, even by marriage.

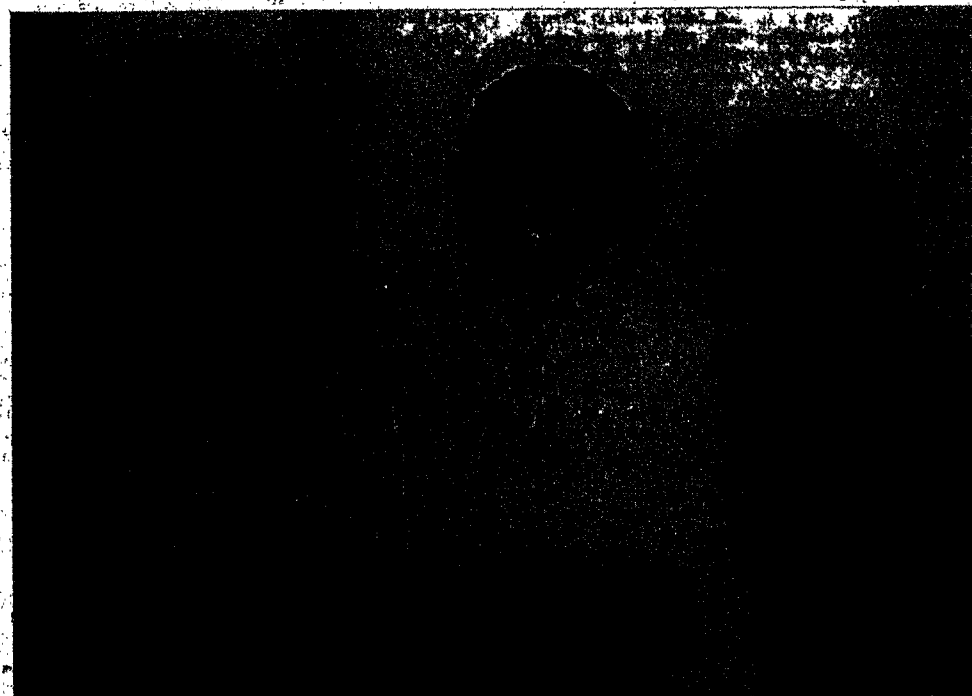

He also said laws concerning woods fires would be reviewed; the illegal sale, possession or use of drugs will be studied; and the Hancock Jail in Bay

St. Louis will be inspected.

The judge also noted the routine duties of the jury including inspection of all county facilities and records.

He noted past Grand Jury reports have criticized individuals in government, but recently revised state guidelines forbid the practice.

Members of the Grand Jury include Foreman Terence M. Teddey, Ruby F. McLain, Linda G. Langston, Iria R. Wilkerson, Betty L. Amos, Linda J. Dupuis, Otis L. Bounds Sr., Harrison P. Ladner, Mary K. Treat, Jacqueline Bradley, Percelle B. Langley, Lana T. Noonan, Ethel S. Green, Sylvia Elaine Burch, Elise F. Farris, Margaret Ackar, Helmut C. Hornum, Hubert H. Bibbo, Myra F. Lusch and Eartha D. Acker.

"He is being held on no bond as we are now trying to see how many charges he made against the credit cards. Highway Investigator David Brooks and Hancock Investigator Delbert Seay are handling the case," the sheriff added.

PRIME PLANTING TIME

If you want to enjoy fresh peaches and other fruits and nuts without paying grocery store prices, now is the ideal time to get started. You can plant peaches at any time in the dormant season, which lasts through February.

Planting early in the dormant season is recommended because it allows the soil to settle and the roots to establish themselves before the tree begins to grow in the spring.

At planting, dig a hole wide enough and deep enough to permit setting the plant without bending, breaking or crowding the roots. Prune roots of the new plants only where it is necessary to remove damaged or dead roots or roots that are exceptionally long and out of proportion with the others.

Place loose topsoil in the bottom of the hole. Set the plant in the hole at the depth it was growing in the nursery. Fill the hole about two-thirds full with good topsoil, fill the hole with water to pack the soil, and then finish filling the hole with topsoil. Leave a slight depression around the base of the plant to hold water.

Don't apply fertilizer at planting because it may damage the young roots. The plant will need fertilizing later this spring after the roots are established and the plant begins to grow.

You will need to follow recommended cultural practices such as pruning, controlling diseases and watering to make sure the trees survive. More information about planting trees, gardens and flowers is available at the county Extension office.

DELTA EXPO JAN. 25-26
Farmers and other officials will have an opportunity to learn about the latest crop production and marketing information during the ninth annual Delta Expo, January 25-26 at the Bolivar County Expo Center.

The Expo gives farmers the latest information on producing and marketing cotton, soybeans, rice, catfish and other crops of interest to farmers across the state. The event is sponsored by the Mississippi Cooperative Extension Service.

Topics that will be discussed by agricultural experts are insect, weed and disease control, crop varieties, irrigation, production, fertility, plant growth and development, and other cultural practices. The world outlook for agriculture also will be given.

Question and answer sessions for farmers will be repeated on the morning and afternoon of each day so growers can attend all sessions during one visit. Morning sessions will begin at 9:00 a.m., afternoon sessions at 1:30 p.m.

More than 100 exhibits inside the Expo Center and on the grounds will give farmers a chance to learn about new production methods and the latest equipment. Publications also will be available. The public is invited to attend.

Harrison County banks to merge

The Boards of Directors of First State Bank, Gulfport and Metropolitan National Bank, Biloxi report Metropolitan will merge into First State. Under the terms of the agreement, Metropolitan will receive cash in an amount equivalent to $8 per share which will be distributed upon consummation of the merger to shareholders of Metropolitan pro-rata based upon share ownership at the time of distribution.

The merger agreement is subject to approval of the shareholders of both banks as well as state and federal regulatory agencies.

The merger agreement will be presented to shareholders at regular annual meetings in March.

Consummation of the merger, if approved, will take place in six to nine months. The announcement was made jointly by W.A. Wiltshire, chairman of First State Bank, and E.W. Blossman, chairman of Metropolitan.

Blossman stated that "the resulting bank will be a larger, stronger institution better able to serve the Biloxi/Gulfport area."

"The consolidation of these banks will give us six branches to serve all of Harrison County with assets of approximately $40,000,000. Both are well managed and our new board of directors will be representative of the areas we serve. We have an exciting future," Wiltshire said.

Hancock County Chapter, American Red Cross, launched its 1983 membership drive at a meeting Monday at the Civil Defense Office in Bay St. Louis.

The drive will continue through March. "Citizens of Hancock County are urged to contribute to this worthy cause," said John D. Rutherford of Bay St. Louis, chapter chairman.

Alvina Nichols, Mary Callier and Joe Petta, RSVF Volunteers, will be contacting senior citizens for their contributions. "We depend on your contribution, join us by sending contributions to American Red Cross, P.O. Box 149, Bay St. Louis, Miss. Rutherford added.

Highway Commission commends employees

The three-member Mississippi State Highway Commission has commended Highway Department employees who performed outstanding work above and beyond the call of duty during the Christmas holidays.

Because of Mississippi's record-breaking rainfall and the resulting floods and washouts on the State's highways, maintenance crews worked night and day on Dec. 25 and 26.

"Unfortunately, because of federal laws, state employees cannot receive extra pay for those hours of work. However, they should know that the Highway Commission, along with all Mississippians, are very grateful for the hard work and dedication that these people demonstrated," a commission spokesman stated.

CANCER Answerline

Question: Is chewing tobacco or dipping snuff safe or non-habit forming?

ANSWERline: Smokeless tobacco doesn't carry the health hazard warning that cigarettes do, but it's tobacco just the same and is habit-forming. The nicotine in it lifts you up first, then lets you down. That high-low effect on your nervous system sets you up for continued need. Thus habitual use of chewing tobacco and snuff causes other health hazards. Among these are leukoplakia, the leathery, white patches inside the mouth caused by direct contact with and continued irritation by tobacco juice; less sense of taste resulting in the urge for more salt or sugar; receding gums and tooth decay. Approximately five percent of diagnosed leukoplakia cases develop into oral cancer. Besides these health hazards it means more bad breath and discolored teeth.

Question: Does the use of talcum powder result in cancer?

ANSWERline: A study in Boston, Mass. at Brigham and Women's Hospital showed some association between talc and ovarian cancer in women who regularly dusted their genitals or sanitary napkins. The hygiene habits of 215 women with ovarian cancer were compared to 215 women who did not have the disease. It was found that 32 women who did have cancer had used talcum, and that only 13 of the women in the control group used it that way. It was suggested that the presence of asbestos in the powder might be involved, in view of the similarity of the ovarian cancer to mesothelioma or cancer of the chest lining which has been definitely linked to asbestos.

Question: Has mammography proven to be beneficial or harmful in the long run when used in the detection and diagnosis of breast cancer?

ANSWERline: According to the American Cancer Society, mammography in trained hands is a most valuable tool in the detection and diagnosis of breast cancer. Breast cancer is the number one cancer killer of American women. In the United States, one of every 11 women will get breast cancer during her lifetime; every 15 minutes, three women develop breast cancer; and one woman dies of the disease. The appropriate use of mammography in conjunction with clinical examination and breast self-examination definitely offers to women over the age of 50, and perhaps to women aged 40 to 49, the promise of significantly increasing the cure rate of breast cancer. In most cases breast cancer can be diagnosed by mammography at an extremely early and highly curable stage. The Society is concerned that unwarranted fears about the danger of radiation associated with mammography may ultimately lead to an increase in deaths from breast cancer.

The Society's statement was issued after the results were in from the five year Breast Cancer Detection Demonstration Project in which more than 280,000 women were screened. It was jointly funded by the Society and the National Cancer Institute.

Energy Answers

Q. My wife says the color of paint we use on the house is going to make a difference in the way it uses energy. Can this be right?

A. Surprisingly, paint can have an effect on energy use. (There are other systems and materials that can have a much bigger effect, obviously.)

The two main considerations for paint choice are color and finish. For indoor or outdoor use, remember that light colors reflect the light and heat rays that strike them and dark colors absorb the light and heat.

In our hot summer climate it's generally more efficient to reflect the excess summer heat than to absorb extra winter heat, so the outside of houses here are often painted light colors. In the north, where the heating season is longer, darker exterior colors help a house gain heat when the sun shines in winter and don't add much to summer bills.

Inside the house, no matter where you live, light colors are the most effective as distributing light. If you paint the ceilings and the walls light colors, they will reflect natural light coming through the windows and cut down in the need to use electric lights.

The ability of colors to reflect light ranges from white, which reflects 80 percent of the light that strikes it, to dark green, which reflects about 9 percent. In order of their reflective abilities, here are some light paint colors you might consider for inside: white, pale ivory, peachy beige, lemon yellow, buff, peach, pale green, medium gray, pale blue, and rose.

Finish can also affect paint's ability to reflect light. Glossy finishes reflect more than flat ones. This means that in areas where exacting work is to be done, like the kitchen, the sewing room, or the workshop, light, glossy finish paints would help distribute light best. In less work-intensive areas where you want to create a more intimate atmosphere, darker colors with flat finishes will work well.

Q. What can I do to make household hot water use more energy-efficient?

A. Install an insulation retrofit kit on your water heater to cut heat loss, and lower the temperature setting on your heater to the lowest degree acceptable to your needs. Never leave hot water running unnecessarily. Fix leaky hot water faucets. Limit dishwasher runs to full loads.

Consider installing a flow restrictor in the showerhead pipe to reduce water flow. Flow restrictors are available at most stores that handle plumbing supplies. Consider using faucet aerators. They mix air with water and reduce the amount of water used, yet provide a water flow turbulent enough for washing.

Laundry clothes in cold or warm water whenever practical. Run full wash loads or adjust the water level control on your washer to the size of your washload.

Q. What areas of a house should be caulked to save on an electric bill?

A. — Between window drip caps (tops of windows) and siding.

— Between door drip caps and siding.

— At joints between window frames and siding.

— At joints between door frames and siding.

— Between window sills and siding.

— At corners formed by siding.

— At sills where wood structure meets the foundation.

— Outside water faucets, or other special breaks in the outside house surface.

— Where pipes and wires penetrate the ceiling below an unheated attic.

— Between porches and main body of the house.

— Where chimney or masonry meets siding.

— Where storm windows meet the window frame, except for drain holes at window sill.

— If you have a heated attic, where the wall meets the eave at the gable ends.

New Wheel Eliminates Common Wheelchair Problems. Rolling its way into the lives of America's handicapped is a revolutionary new wheel for both sport and conventional wheelchairs that's lightweight, easy-to-clean and of super-strong construction.

A new wheel for wheelchairs is made of easy-cleaning, extremely lightweight magnesium that doesn't attract dirt and dust.

Historically, rear wheels are the most troublesome component of a wheelchair. Constant maintenance was required to tighten and replace spokes that couldn't always stand up to the daily wear of active use. Regular maintenance and adjustment was needed to keep the wheel in round... not to mention the difficult and tiresome task of cleaning soiled spokes.

No more. The Mag Pneumatic Wheel from Invacare Corporation features a crisp, simple, attractive design with no spokes to loosen or break. It's made of easy-cleaning magnesium that doesn't attract dirt and dust and designed without crevices and corners where dirt can hide.

Strong but lightweight materials and special construction combined with precision double-sealed bearings assure years of trouble-free service. The rigid, no-torque design transforms each push into maximum rollability.

With Mag Pneumatic wheels, America's handicapped can roll in comfort anywhere. For free information that can tell you more, write to Invacare Corporation, 1200 Taylor Street, P.O. Box 4028, Elyria, Ohio 44036.

NEWS FOR INVESTORS

High Earnings, Maximum Safety

A growing number of investors looking for a "safe harbor" have begun to anchor some of their cash savings to a new form of money market fund.

It's called the U.S. Treasury Money Fund, a mutual fund which offers money market yields higher than passbook savings accounts in addition to maximum safety of principal and interest. The U.S. Treasury Fund invests in U.S. Treasury securities and other obligations directly guaranteed by the U.S. government—all backed by full faith and credit of the United States.

One particularly safe money market fund is backed by the full faith and credit of the United States.

By its nature, this new fund provides a "safe harbor" for cash while earning high money market yields. That's why many experts recommend it for investors who require maximum protection. It is also recommended for trustees and fiduciaries for diversification and for IRA and other retirement plans.

A free booklet on how the U.S. Treasury Money Fund works is available by writing to: T. Rowe Price, c/o T. Rowe Price Marketing, Inc., Dept. Y82, Baltimore, Maryland 21202, or by calling toll-free, 1-800-888-5660; 1-800-492-1976 in Maryland.

WINTERTIME WARM-UP

The following series of stretching exercises, called the Salutation to the Sun, can provide an invigorating morning ritual that will get you going on chilly days. The set of 12 positions should be performed as one continuous, fluid sequence in as many cycles as you wish. It's suggested that you face east, toward the rising sun, as you do the exercises.

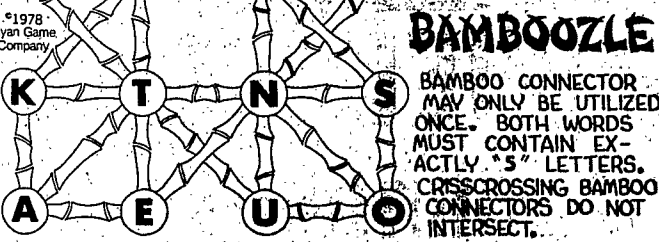

- [1] The Salutation to the Sun is begun in a standing position, with the feet together at the edge of an exercise mat or carpet. Bend your arms at the elbows and place your palms together in front of your chest. Relax in this pose for a moment or two, then begin to inhale.
- [2] As you continue to draw in that breath, raise your arms high overhead and lean backward, arching your spine slightly.
- [3] Then, while you exhale, bend forward from the waist and drop your head toward your knees (which should not be bent). Try to bring your hands to rest on the floor in front of your feet.
- [4] The fourth position is again performed on an inhaled. Keeping your hands in place, bend your left knee and stretch your right leg out behind you. Bend it slightly also so that the knee rests on the floor, and flex the toes for a good "grip". Then arch your back and look upward.
- [5] Next, exhale as you straighten the right leg and move your left limb back beside it. Push your buttocks up to form an inverted "V" with your body, and let your head hang loosely between your arms. Your back—from shoulders to hips—should be as straight as possible. Pull your stomach in toward the spine, and try to press your heels flat against the floor.
- [6] As you move into the next pose, you'll need to hold your breath. Bend both arms at the elbows and lower your body carefully to the floor, with contact points at the forehead, chest, hands, and knees. Keep your pelvis, abdomen, and thighs slightly raised, and press your chin into the hollow at the base of your throat.
- [7] Now, as you inhale, lower your pelvis and legs onto the floor; straighten your arms, arch your back, and let your head roll backward.
- [8] With this position you begin to reverse the cycle and move back toward the starting point. As you exhale, thrust your hips high, forming the inverted V again.
- [9] Next, inhale and move your right leg forward until that foot rests on the floor between your hands. Extend the left leg back, touching the floor with your knee, and lean your head back. (This pose is an alternate-leg version of Fig. 4.)
- [10] As you exhale, bring the left foot up beside the right, then straighten both legs and drop your torso until your head approaches your knees again.
- [11] Inhale and stand up straight as you stretch your arms high overhead.
- [12] On the last exhale, bring your hands back together in front of your chest—to pay a final homage to the morning sun—and breathe freely for a few moments.

Mississippi ranks nationally in producing Rhodes Scholars

The Oxford connection is still on track — Oxford, Miss. and Oxford, England — through which the State of Mississippi can be justly proud of its unusually high number of Rhodes Scholars.

The Rhodes Scholarships, established in 1902, are the most prestigious of scholastic awards, bringing with them the opportunity for two years of study at Oxford University in England, one of the world's greatest educational institutions.

With the recent selection of Marshall Boudin IV of Clarksdale to join 75 other scholars from throughout the world on this year's Rhodes list, the University of Mississippi has forged a remarkable record of producing Rhodes Scholars.

Twenty-four Rhodes Scholars are Ole Miss alumni, 21 earning the honor while students there. With an official 21, Ole Miss ranks 5th among all of the nation's state universities in producing Rhodes Scholars, 16th among all American colleges and universities, and second in the Southeastern Conference only to Vanderbilt's 27.

In its twin traditions of academics and football, Ole Miss has had both 24 Rhodes Scholars and 24 football All-Americans, a balancing act exceeded by few universities.

Despite a history fraught with economic problems, Mississippi stands proud in some fields, among them its shining array of academic scholars who have been recognized competitively by a worldwide institution.

LEGAL BRIEFS

Trial Lawyers Fight to Protect Rights of Society

By Howard A. Specker, President, Association of Trial Lawyers of America

For 36 years the trial lawyers across the country who are members of the Association of Trial Lawyers of America (ATLA) have dedicated themselves to the single goal of providing strong competent and vigorous representation to the injured victims of society.

Starting with only 11 lawyers in 1946, ATLA has grown to a volunteer army of more than 50,000 men and women who remain sensitive to the rights and needs of society.

Many years ago when only defendants and insurance company lawyers had access to shared knowledge and technology, trial lawyer teachers exploded upon the scene to share their techniques and thoughts. These innovative legal education steps were taken in this quest for justice, testing and expanding the rights of the injured.

As defective products, negligent drivers, doctors and landowners took their toll in human suffering, trial lawyers rose to the challenge by striving for new and better legal theories and techniques to protect old rights and to create new ones. As insurance companies and corporate giants were rewarded daily by denying compensation for personal injury and rights to victims through delay, deceit and corruption, trial lawyers created in one courthouse and then in another new causes of action to reduce the inequity of inequality.

When the law was unjust or antiquated, it was tested again and again until it met the needs of society at the time. The legal concept of strict liability in product liability cases began to evolve on a state-by-state, case-by-case basis until the doctrine became accepted today across the country.

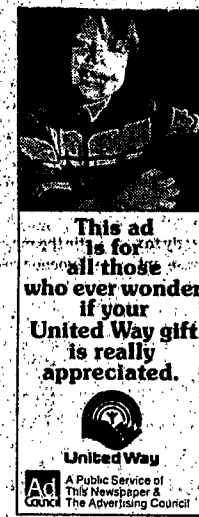

Trial lawyers saw the need for a new cause of action against insurance companies which collected insurance premiums from policyholders and then shunned them when legitimate claims were presented.

Many other outmoded doctrines have been challenged and changed because of the dedication and persistence of trial lawyers practicing in a judicial system which enables judges to respond to contemporary needs. While fairness has been approached, if not achieved, in the courtroom arena, many challenges remain ahead for trial lawyers on behalf of their clients.

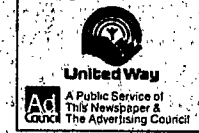

But just as trial lawyers have persevered in other, older battles to protect the rights of their clients and the ability of the common law to evolve and develop, they will continue to do so.

WHO ARE AMERICANS?

Americans are immigrants—all. Well nearly all, except for the Indian tribes during recorded history who slowly were pushed back onto the horizons as the shores of the North American continent were invaded.

During colonial days the first Americans to be stemmed from Great Britain primarily seeking religious or political freedom or better economic conditions. Shortly thereafter there were slaves from Africa brought in as involuntary immigrants.

Between 1820 and 1860 most immigrants came from Ireland, Germany, and later,

China. And between 1861 and 1890 they came chiefly from Germany, Ireland, and Scandinavia. The flow then continued for much the same reasons from Italy, Russia, Austria, Hungary, Poland, Mexico and other places.

While the land was new and needed development, immigrants were gladly received. Some areas, including Mississippi, even advertised in Europe for workers to move here. It took vast manpower to clear and farm this vast "new ground," trap the furbearing animals, convert trees into lumber, sail our navigable waterways for a profit, dig the mines for mineral wealth, and build and operate factories.

But by the last quarter of the 19th century those Americans who already had become established began to try to stem the flow. Between the Civil War and World War I, Congress acted to prevent the entrance of certain types including criminals, prostitutes, lunatics, idiots, paupers, polygamists, the diseased, those who believed in anarchy or forceful overthrow of our government, and illiterates.

West Coast political and labor groups insisted that Congress also bar Chinese and Japanese because they were competing with native-born workers. And following World War I economic conditions caused the U.S. to look more sharply at the question of who should be allowed to enter this nation.

In 1924 an Immigration Act was passed establishing quotas to limit the number who could come here from each nation. In 1929 this act was amended to create quotas in proportion to the national backgrounds of U.S. citizens. Yet Asians were severely restricted and Europeans were limited to only about 150,000 annually, mostly from northern Europe.

Basically, this was the system used until 1955. Although the 1952 McCarran-Walter Act nominally abolished race as a bar to immigration, each Asian and African country was allowed only 100 immigrants a year.

Congress however left one massive loophole in the law that permitted 200,000 "aliens" from Canada and Latin American countries to immigrate into the U.S. annually. Additionally, Congress passed occasionally special laws to admit large groups outside of quotas. Under 1948 and 1953 laws, 400,000 European refugees came in. Later, Hungarian and then Cuban refugees were given a special welcome. Also, every year hundreds of private bills are adopted, each letting in a single person who would otherwise have difficulty immigrating.

On July 1, 1968, a new law discarded the old quota system almost entirely in favor of "selective immigration," or choosing primarily among people rather than countries.

Now we legally admit 170,000 immigrants annually from the nations of the world outside the Western Hemisphere, but no more than 20,000 from any one country. For the first time there is a limit on immigration from the West too. Up to 120,000 newcomers from Latin America, Canada, and other neighboring areas are allowed to come in annually, but there is no country-by-country limit. Still there are problems—such as giving too much discretionary power to consuls, immigration officials, and Labor Department employees who decide who gets visas.

International Paper pledges environmental concern

With 16.5 million acres of commercial forestlands, Mississippi is one of the nation's top timber-producing states. A mainstay of the economy, one out of every five manufacturing jobs exist because of the forest industry.

The expanding population is using more wood for thousands of pulp and paper products, building materials, fuel and other uses. It is therefore essential that timberland owners—government, industry and others in the private sector—ensure adequate wood supplies through proven forest management practices.

As the largest private landowner in the state, International Paper Company is concerned over the question of good stewardship of its lands," said John Nugent, regional manager of IP's land and timber organization in Mississippi. He said foresters intensively manage company lands for better timber production while maintaining an environment for the production of wildlife, public recreation and scenic beauty.

"In order to accomplish our reforestation goals, we plant five trees for every one we harvest. Our plantations begin with genetically superior seedlings or "super-trees" that promise greatly increased fiber yields," Nugent said. Modern forest management techniques, including site preparation, mechanical planting, thinning, streamside management and controlled burning are applied to every phase of the forest's life cycle.

"IP has been a corporate citizen of Mississippi for more than half a century," Nugent said. "Growing and managing forests involves long-term commitments, and we plan on planting and harvesting many more timber crops here."

Do you ever stop to think that when you're relishing an avocado, you're enjoying a treat that your ancestors—and probably most everyone else's, too—enjoyed many, many hundreds, even thousands of years ago?

Ever since 1519, when that Spanish soldier of fortune, Hernando Cortez, the first white man to set foot in Mexico City, sampled that most versatile fruit of the New World, the avocado has added to man's gustatory delight.

The conquistador's historian, Oviedo, wrote of the avocado thusly: "In the center of the fruit is a seed like a peeled chestnut. And between this and the rind is that part which is eaten, which is abundant, and is a paste similar to butter and of very good taste."

That culinary advice is just as appropriate today.

The avocado, in fact, is known as "poor man's butter" in Mexico and Southern Central America, and I prefer it to the finest butter from any dairy. It's more delicious than sour cream over baked potatoes; it's tasty on your morning toast; it's one of the most versatile foods on earth.

Until recent years, we used to make several trips to Mexico during the year, and I can assure you that I gorged myself on avocados from morning through Mexico's later than late dinner hour, from guacamole with the breakfast eggs to a late snack of avocado mousse or ice or what have you.

Here's the way our Mexican friends make their

GUACAMOLE
2 avocados, mashed smooth
1 hot green chili pepper, minced
1 clove garlic, minced
2 small green (sour green) tomatoes, chopped
1 Tbsp. lime juice
Salt (optional)

Our Mexican friends add a cup of fresh cilantro, chopped (that's the pungent Mexican parsley) but I find that a bit of our own finely chopped parsley is an acceptable substitute—when I'm not in Ole Mexico!

Combine all ingredients, salt to your taste, and chill. Serve with tacos or crackers, over lettuce wedges, or just devour it—with cold water or beer or something handy!

For a less pungent version, mash the two avocados; add a tablespoon of minced onion, a minced clove of garlic, a generous dash of chili powder and black pepper, and a third of a cup of mayonnaise.

Combine all ingredients except the mayonnaise in a small bowl, top with the mayonnaise and chill. When ready to serve, stir the mayonnaise into the avocado mixture; top with crumbled bacon bits, if you wish.

The mayonnaise overcoat helps keep the avocado bright till serving time; in the spicier version, just sprinkle lemon juice over to prevent darkening.

Commercial production then is the only limiting factor. In order to qualify for use value of agricultural land, the following criteria must be met:

1. Any land that is producing a crop or commercial product of the soil must have a gross income of at least $50.00 per acre or must be over 20 acres in size.
2. The taxpayer must apply for use value between January 1 and April 1 of each year by making application as provided in Section 27-35-49 Mississippi Code of 1972 annotated. This application must be on the form prescribed by the State Tax Commission.
3. A three acre homestead will be valued separately for each parcel that has a residence. This homestead will be valued at market price.
4. Improvements to the land such as dikes for catfish ponds will be added at cost.

In accord with the directions from the Mississippi State Tax Commission, this office is forwarding applications to all known property owners for land use value on property. Please return this application to the Tax Assessor's Office, Post Office Box 102, Ray Saint Louis, Mississippi 39086, prior to April 1st always, this office will be happy to assist you in this endeavor. Collier, Risher and Haddix picked as Senior Bowl backs

Pittsburgh's All-American quarterback Dan Marino, the first player ever drafted by the NFL, heads the field for the 34th annual Senior Bowl, which will be televised live by ESPN Saturday, Jan. 22 at noon.

ESPN is carried on Hancock Cable's Channel 3.

Jim Simpson, Bud Wilkinson, George Grande and Paul

Maguire will be in Mobile, Ala. for ESPN's second Senior Bowl telecast. Last year's game was the first bowl game to be seen exclusively on cable.

This year's game will include many of the nation's top seniors playing in their first professional contest; members of the winning team will receive $2,500; losers,

$2,250. Many pro scouts feel that this year's crop of seniors is the best in the last decade.

Marino will lead the North squad, which also features quarterback Tom Ramsey, of Rose Bowl victor UCLA, and running backs Tim Spencer (Ohio State), Roger Craig (Nebraska), Stanley Wilson (Oklahoma) and Larry Morlarty (Notre Dame).

The South squad will be quarterbacked by Reggie Collier (Southern Mississippi), Alan Risher (LSU) and John Holman (Northeast Louisiana). Running backs will be James Jones (Florida), Kelvin Bryant (North Carolina), Michael Haddix (Mississippi State) and Johnny Hecktor (Texas A&M).

The American Motors Company, a major advertiser on ESPN, will award automobiles to the most valuable players on offense and defense.

Senior Bowl alumni in the NFL are numerous: Danny White, Terry Bradshaw, Richard Todd and James Lofton are just a few who have played in the game.

1983 Senior Bowl quick facts:

- 20 players on this year's rosters are among the first 36 chosen by the USFL.
- 46 players appeared in post-season bowl games.
- Every year since 1970, the Senior Bowl has produced a quarterback that started in his rookie season in the NFL.

ESPN viewers more replays from more angles than at any time during the regular season.

One of the cameras will be stationed in the Goodyear blimp, weather permitting.

Scotty Connal, ESPN executive vice-president and chief operating officer, and Bill Fitts, executive producer, will supervise ESPN's activities in Mobile.

Simpson and Wilkinson will call the action. Maguire will provide isolated analysis on individuals who might be impressing the scouts.

Grande will conduct sideline interviews throughout the game. He and Maguire will provide also week-long interviews for SportsCenter.

ESPN's sports news show, and will host ESPN's Senior Bowl preview, which will air Jan. 21 at 7:30 p.m.

The game telecast will be repeated Jan. 23 at 8 a.m., Jan. 24 at 1:30 p.m., Jan. 26 at 9 p.m. and Jan. 27 at 11 a.m.

Small game is nutritious, can be more flavorful, too

The crisp days of hunting season send many people to the field in search of flavorful alternatives to the meats offered in the grocery store.

Eleanor Coats, food and nutrition specialist with the Mississippi Cooperative Extension Service, said flavor depends upon proper field dressing.

Coats urges hunters to properly field dress their small game to assure the best flavor.

Doves, rabbits, squirrels and other small game must be handled carefully to avoid spoilage to prevent off-flavors from developing.

Small game should be bled and cleaned as soon as possible after it is killed. This prevents stomach juices from seeping into the meat and spoiling it. It also preserves a more subtle, less gamey, flavor.

Warm, freshly killed game provides an excellent breeding ground for salmonella bacteria. Coats suggests that small game hunters keep an ice chest handy on warm days.

The game should be skinned as soon as possible. Soaking the animal in a strong salt solution for about an hour will help remove the bloodiness around the shot.

Unless dressed game is to be cooked right away, it should be wrapped in a moisture-vapor resistant material such as heavy-duty freezer foil, plastic freezer bags or waxed freezer paper, and frozen immediately.

Mrs. Coats said the recommended storage limits for squirrel and rabbit meat is four to six months. Game birds can be kept frozen for as long as nine to ten months.

When one is ready to cook the frozen game, the game should be allowed to thaw in the refrigerator for 12 to 18 hours. This will help tenderize the meat.

Squirrel is among the most tender of small game. It should be prepared in the same manner as a chicken.

"It's good floured and fried, or broiled with a bit of lemon juice and butter," Coats said.

Coats suggests moist heat for older squirrels. "Older squirrels won't be quite as tender so you'll need to cook with moist heat. Use a covered pan and braise in gravy or stew with vegetables," she said.

Rabbit meat can be prepared in the same ways as chicken. Coats cautions that it must be cooked well-done.

For more tips and recipes on wild game preparation contact your County Extension office.

Coast Guard publishes navigation rules

A revised edition of the United States Coast Guard publication, "Navigation Rules, International - Inland" is now available through the Government Printing Office.

Federal law requires that after Jan. 1, 1983, a copy of the new Inland Navigation Rules must be kept for reference on board all boats of 12 meters (39.4 feet) or more in length operating on inland waters.

All boat operators, regardless of the size of their vessel, are expected to know and comply with the Inland Navigation Rules which became effective on Dec. 24, 1981, on all inland waters except for the Great Lakes. They will become effective on the Great Lakes March 1, 1983.

The International Rules which govern the operation of vessels outside U.S. waters have been revised by 55 amendments effective June 1, 1983. The Coast Guard book contains all of these changes.

The Coast Guard stresses that familiarity with the navigation rules is one of the surest ways to make vessel operations safer and more enjoyable for all concerned.

Price of the Coast Guard book is $5.50. It may be ordered by name, "Navigation Rules, International - Inland," and stock number, 050-012-00192-8, from the Superintendent of Documents, U.S. Government Printing Office, Washington, D.C. 20402.

Purchasers should send a check or money order payable to "Superintendent of Documents." VISA or MasterCard may be used if the purchaser provides his/her name exactly as it appears on the card, identifies the type of card, its number, and expiration date. Also, telephone orders may be placed by calling (202) 783-3238.

Bill changes deer hunting season dates

The Mississippi Legislature passed a bill last week which has been signed into law, changing a portion of the state's remaining deer hunting with guns.

Effective Saturday, Jan. 8, it became permissible for Mississippi deer hunters to take deer with the use of dogs through Jan. 15.

In addition the new law now allows the second regular gun season for deer to continue from Jan. 16 through Jan. 23 without dogs.

Wildlife officials in Jackson said that the action by the Legislature in no way interferes with or changes the already established primitive weapons or archery seasons which will be underway during the Jan. 16-31 hunting period.

Officials also stressed that the changes in the deer hunting period will not apply to deer hunting on any of the state wildlife management areas.

Hunting on these areas are governed by statutes which allow the Commission on Wildlife Conservation to establish regulations for state wildlife management areas.

SENIOR CITIZEN HAPPENINGS

By THERESA JAMES
RSVP Director

Volunteers who man the Hospitality Center on US-90 in Waveland usually have some interesting stories to tell about tourists who stop there.

Recently, Mr. and Mrs. Al Mailhes were on duty when a couple in a motorhome stopped for information.

While talking, after offering them a cup of coffee, they discovered this couple was touring the country and they were from England.

It was later discovered they were from Southport, England.

Mrs. Mailhes was delighted because she is also from Southport and lived only ten miles from Mr. and Mrs. A.L. Crookford, the touring couple.

Needless to say, both couples enjoyed their visit and when it was time for them to leave, Mr. and Mrs. Mailhes invited Mr. and Mrs. Crookford to have dinner with them at their home.

They did and were persuaded to stay for the Senior Citizens Ball on Saturday, Jan. 8.

They attended the ball, and all who met them were impressed with their friendliness and their pleasure in being invited to attend the ball.

Mr. and Mrs. Crookford were overwhelmed by the hospitality and friendliness of the people in this area and vowed they would return, maybe for the Carnival Season.

We are happy to hear about such experiences, because it involves our volunteers and encourages others to spread the word about our beautiful Gulf Coast and warm hospitality of its citizens.

We have had a very busy Holiday Season and are looking forward to the New Year.

There are many opportunities for people over 60 to help their community while enjoying the busy life of unselfish commitment to helping others.

The following areas need more volunteers if we are to do the wonderful job that we have done in the past, using the talents and energies of those enrolled in our program and inviting others who are over 60 and would like to donate time and talents to the less fortunate: shut-ins in nursing homes and hospitals, children who need grandfather and grandmother images and just helping improve the community where we live.

On Fridays, we will take groups of volunteers to help with bingo games at the Dixie White House Nursing Home. We also need volunteers to help serve snacks to patients in the Reed Hotel Nursing Home.

On Feb. 5, we will need nurses to take blood pressures in front of the new Jitney Jungle Super Market for the Heart Association.

The Hospitality Center on US-90 is in need of more volunteers to fill the vacancies left by several volunteers who have moved or who are ill.

Please call the RSVP office at 467-9204 if you can serve just a few hours a week or a month.

You will find that you receive much more than you give, because most of our volunteers feel as though they are recipients rather than the giver.

Just talk to some of them and they will tell you.

SCREENING ROOM ONLY

By David H. Jones

Top Ten from 1982
Bearing in mind that "Gandhi" and "Sophie's Choice" have yet to reach our area "screening rooms" (i.e. Gulf Coast theaters, Pryntania Theater in New Orleans, HBO, Star, video cassette, etc.), I present the following list of top ten films of 1982. The films are listed in order of preference with No. 1 being the best.

(1) "My Dinner With Andre"—The thoroughly enchanting movie that defied cinematic logic by presenting two middle-aged men—playwright Wallace Shawn and director Andre Gregory—having dinner and talking. Simply talking, but what talk it was!

The conversation ranged from the forests of Poland to the Sahara Desert to a cigar shop on Seventh Avenue in New York City. The screenplay, which was gleaned from hundreds of hours of taped conversations between Shawn and Gregory, is filled with powerful passages on life and love and, quite unexpectedly, there is a platter full of perfect humor doled out by the pudgy and infectious Shawn.

Louis Malle, who directed my choice for best picture in 1981—"Atlantic City," follows their conversation candidly. And "My Dinner With Andre" is an incredible film, a dessert of pure delight.

(2) "Shoot the Moon"—The earliest 1982 release to make this list. Stars Albert Finney and Diane Keaton dominant this stark story of emotional suicide concerning the deterioration of the Dunlap family.

As George and Faith struggle to patch their shattered lives, we follow through Alan Parker's stunning direction of an American divorce.

"Shoot the Moon" contained two classic moments of cinema: (1) Diane Keaton singing a lonely, sad rendition of the Beatles' "If I Fell" while in her bathtub. (2) The final frozen frame from this eyes-on drama.

(3) "Tootsie"—A great comedy with Dustin Hoffman performing fresh, intelligent humor in drag.

As faceracted feminist Dorothy Michaels, Hoffman has shown range beyond what was expected from this gifted actor. Coupled with Sydney Pollack's fluid direction and an ensemble cast that glitters throughout the film, "Tootsie" is a miracle of laughter.

(4) "Cutter's Way"—An artistic argument for misguided justice. John Heard sparked as a raunchy, tough-talking Viet vet who is convinced that his best friend (Jeff Bridges) knows the identity of a murderer.

The debates are intriguing, the characters beguiling and the film rushes headlong toward its climax like a runaway steed. An off-beat, film directed by Ivan Passer.

(5) "Diva"—The visually stunning French import from first-time director Jean-Jacques Beineix.

In "Diva" the storyline took a backseat to the bizarre, pell-mell glide through Paris imagery.

Beineix took his own labyrinth story and reduced it to an understandable odyssey of intrigue, comedy, murder and love. "Diva" is a visual kamikaze treat for everyone who enjoys quality films.

(6) "The Verdict"—Sidney Lumet's deliberate direction of Paul Newman produced this quietly disturbing portrait of a man against "the system." Newman's Frank Galvin is thoroughly despicable yet we yearn for his victory in court.

Newman is quite simply stunning as the drunken, ravaged lawyer struggling to regain his respectability. And Lumet's direction of "The Verdict" is carefully manipulated to a stimulating climax despite its almost languid approach.

(7) "Quest for Fire"—The unusual tale of life 2,000 B.C. Directed by Jean-Jacques Annaud, "Quest for Fire" stars Everett McGill and Rae Dawn as cave men overcoming adversity.

With unconventional dialogue supplied by Anthony Burgess, who wrote the futuristic lingo from Kubrick's "A Clockwork Orange," and gorgeous performances by a cast of unknowns, "Quest for Fire" is an enlightening movie experience.

(8) "E.T.—The Extraterrestrial"—No list of top ten would be complete without E.T., the popular, three-foot tall alien that took the country by storm. Directed by Steven Spielberg, "E.T." was an openly adolescent rehash of "A boy and his dog" routine, only this time E.T. came from another galaxy.

But it worked and now "E.T." is bearing down on the all-time record holder for earnings by a motion picture, George Lucas' "Star Wars" (which will appear on HBO in February).

(9) "The Road Warrior"—A no-holds barred chase from the opening credits to the tenth power! A hungry, apocalyptic tale of speed and survival. With Mel Gibson belting his way through George Steven's sequel to his Australian hit "Mad Max."

"The Road Warrior" contains some of the most incredible stunts ever put on film.

(10) "Cat People"—Paul Schrader's brutal and surreal venture into metamorphosis via centuries of incest and ritual rites.

Starring Nastassia Kinski and Malcolm McDowell as the feline-inclined duo, "Cat People" was filmed in and around New Orleans. "Cat People" is a strange odyssey filled with intense imagery, terrifying performances and accompanied by a guttural soundtrack synthesized by Giorgio Moroder.

Final thoughts:
Honorable Mentions:
"Richard Pryor: Live on Sunset Strip," "My Favorite Year," "Poltergeist" and "Personal Best."

Sorry I missed: "Diner" and "Missing."

Most eagerly awaited film that failed: "The World According to Garp."

Good riddance: "Porky's," "Conan, The Barbarian" and "The Best Little Whorehouse in Texas."

The most rewarding aspect of compiling a list of the top ten is recalling some of the memorable moments contained in each of these great films. If you didn't catch them the first time around be looking for them in another screening room. With choices like the ten films listed above, you're not really taking a chance at all.

LEGAL HISTORY

The University of Southern Mississippi Gulf Park campus in Long Beach is the site of a Feb. 3-5 conference on the legal history of the South.

The conference, sponsored by the USM Department of History and the Vanderbilt University School of Law, is made possible by grants from the Mississippi Committee for the Humanities and the National Endowment for the Humanities.

Participants include Bradford Reynolds, assistant attorney general, civil rights division of the Department of Justice, as well as leading legal experts and historians.

Law and the Southern Economy, the Law of Slavery, the South's Bench and Bar, Law and the Rights in the New South and Law and Politics and Society in the South are the topics to be discussed.

Among the many universities represented are Stanford University School of Law, the University of North Carolina School of Law, Georgetown University School of Law, the Universities of Alabama, Florida, Georgia, Tennessee, Virginia, as well as Vanderbilt and USM.

For additional information about the conference contact Conferences and Workshops, USM-Gulf Park, Long Beach, Miss. 39560 or call (601) 864-2155.

Miss. 39560 or call (601) 864-2155.

CANCELLATION

"Designing Care Plans for Pediatric Patients who are Acutely Ill," a workshop offered by the University of Southern Mississippi School of Nursing Continuing Education Program, has been cancelled. The workshop was scheduled for January 12 at USM.

SPECIAL ED

Special Education procedures for regular classroom teachers, special educators and administrators is the title of a workshop offered on weekends beginning Jan. 14 at the Jackson County campus of the University of Southern Mississippi in Gautier.

Dates for the workshop are Jan. 14-15, 21-22 and 28-29. Dr. Winston E. Markwalder, associate professor at USM Gulf Coast will lead the workshop featuring presentations by 10 district supervisors of special education from the coast.

The workshop will provide information to teachers and other professional personnel of the provisions, procedures and policies of the Mississippi

DOUBLE MASTER'S

The University of Southern Mississippi is offering a double master's program in history and library science.

Students can enroll in both degree programs simultaneously, according to Dean Onva Boshears of the School of Library Service. If successful, the idea could be expanded into other fields, he said.

The program was begun because of a growing need at the national and state levels for expertise in specialized fields such as corporate and public history, genealogy, research, academic and special librarianship, museum and archival administration.

The interdisciplinary approach reduces the hours required for a Master of Library Science degree from 39 to 33 hours and that for M.A. in History from 30 to 24. Each program accepts the other's courses as the elective hours.

A full time student can complete the program in two years including summers. The double degree puts the graduate in a better position to get a job than if he held either degree singly, according to Boshears.

Among the types of jobs open to one with the double masters are positions with corporations needing people to manage their archives, with college libraries and government agencies requiring employees with information retrieval experience.

He said the double masters is becoming a national trend and the double masters idea at USM may be coupled in the future with degrees in the sciences and fine arts making the graduates well suited to work in organizations with scientific or music and art libraries.

For additional information contact either Professor Antonio Rodriguez-Buckingham, School of Library Service, Southern Station Box 5146 or Professor Orazio Ciccarelli, Department of History, Southern Station Box 5047, Hattiesburg, Miss. 39401.

State Department of Education concerning special education.

"A special effort will be made to answer educators questions of 'What am I supposed to do?' and also provide information as to how? and why?," said Markwalder.

For additional information contact Conferences and Workshops, USM-Gulf Park, Long Beach, Miss. 39560 or call (601) 864-2155.

DRUG FORUM

A district seminar for area pharmacists will be held at Jeff Davis Campus on Jan. 26 as part of a program to help Mississippi pharmacists remain up-to-date on latest developments in the profession.

Guest speaker at the meeting in Gulfport will be Dr. Arthur Kibbe, assistant professor of pharmacology.

Topic of the talk will be "Drug Interactions with Over-the-Counter Products."

Sponsoring the seminar are the University of Mississippi School of Pharmacy, the Ole Miss Bureau of Pharmaceutical Services, and the Mississippi State Pharmaceutical Association.

Pharmacists from the five counties in District IX are expected to attend the seminar.

Dean Wallace L. Guess of the Ole Miss School of Pharmacy described the seminar programs as "an excellent means to the desirable end of continuing education in pharmacy."

"By registering and attending a seminar in his district, each pharmacist is taking an important step toward maintaining his store of pharmaceutical knowledge... and taking that step with a minimum amount of inconvenience."

Bob Broadus of Gautier, president of the State Association, also encouraged district pharmacists to attend the seminar. Counties in District IX are Hancock, Harrison, Jackson, Southern Pearl River, and Stone.

Talking To Your Teenagers About Alcohol

Few subjects generate as much concern—and sometimes conflict—between parents and teenagers as the subject of drinking beverage alcohol. Studies have shown that today's teenagers are likely to experiment with drinking and driving. Your reaction as a parent is extremely important. How should you handle it? What should you say?

All too often, parents and teenagers avoid talking about drinking and driving, yet open and frank discussion about the subject is vital in order to develop healthy and safe practices about alcoholic beverages—and to keep your child from contributing to the grim statistics that result from this dangerous combination.

Here are some things that have helped in talking with teenagers about drinking, according to the liquor industry's trade organization, the Distilled Spirits Council of the United States:

- Honestly explore your own behavior when drinking before you talk with your teenager.
- Be honest in expressing your feelings and in stating your own values and preferences. Encourage the same from your son or daughter.
- Be calm, firm and consistent. Remember that you're sharing ideas and information. Don't put your teenager on the witness stand or demand a confession.

"When it comes to teenage drinking and driving," says Draw Pearson of the Dallas Cowboys and Joe Theismann of the Washington Redskins, "there are no winners. Just teenagers in danger—and parents, worried and confused."

• Tell your teenager you want to hear what he has to say and to learn what he knows about drinking. Be a good listener, even when you may not agree.

• Keep to the point. No matter where the discussion leads, and no matter what kind of reaction you may get or feel, keep forcefully in mind that this discussion concerns only the question of drinking.

• Emphasize that you are concerned with the present and the future of your teenager's life. For a free booklet on this subject, write: "Straight Talk About Alcohol," Box 1197-P, Washington, DC 20013.

College offers program to high school juniors

A special Mississippi College program to be offered this coming summer will allow the high school junior student the opportunity to take college work prior to actually becoming a collegian.

According to Dr. Phil McCarty, professor of religious education and coordinator for the College Program for Seniors, two collegiate terms will be offered, the first beginning June 6 and running for five weeks and the second beginning July 11 and continuing for five weeks.

The special program will allow a high school student who has completed the junior year to enroll in actual college courses for college credit. The program will allow the young student to get the feel of college life before graduating from high school and will also allow for college credit at special prices.

Scholarships for approximately 75 percent of the tuition costs are provided to students eligible for the program. During each of the two terms the student may select up to seven hours of academic credit which will be recorded on an official college transcript.

Enrollment in the program is limited and those from the local area interested should make application as soon as possible.

Students or parents desiring additional information should write or call Dr. McCarty at Mississippi College in Clinton, telephone 924-5131, Ext. 227.

The Invisible Pipeline Connection

Imagine 9000 miles of steel pipe between hundreds of natural gas fields and Gulf South distribution points.

Imagine it because you can't see it. It's buried underground, virtually invisible. But it represents a billion-dollar investment that has made natural gas a way of life in the Gulf South.

It's our pipeline connection.

But it doesn't connect our natural gas to you. We don't drill or produce oil or gas so everything we deliver we buy under contract from others.

We buy trillions of cubic feet of natural gas for our customers and we try to buy on the best possible terms, for the present and for the future. But the price of gas has risen steadily for the last 20 years and particularly over the last five.

It's the biggest problem we have because we're only the pipeline connection between those who sell and those who buy. Price concerns us as much as it does you.

And as natural gas grows more valuable, the need for conservation grows more imperative. Conserve. The economic future of our region depends on natural gas. What we save today will be needed tomorrow.

Dr. Walter Washington, president of Alcorn, has named an advisory board, composed of local civic leaders, to assist the university in the planning process.

The 12-member board includes Alex Batton, James Beesley, Mrs. Joan Beesley, Ms. Lillie Blackmon, and Ken McCoy, all of Port Gibson; G.E. Palmer of Lorman; and Marion Hayes and Kennie

Middleton of Fayette. University representatives on the advisory board include Dr. Joyce Bolden, Dr. Joyce Jenkins, Dr. Jerome Burton, and Mrs. Shirley Washington. Dr. David Crosby, director of the Communications Program at Alcorn, has been named project director.
